

Statement on SUN CARE products

(Calw, June 2017) Using advanced technology and valuable plant extracts, Börlind GmbH has developed a line of sun care products that comply with the current requirements and guidelines. With two exceptions, we do not use mineral-based UV filters such as titanium dioxide and zinc oxide. Instead, our products contain organic UV filters. Our SUN Sun Cream DNA Protect SPF 30 and Anti-Aging Sun Cream SPF 50 do contain titanium dioxide, but not in nano form.

For our sun care products in the ANNEMARIE BÖRLIND – Natural Beauty brand, we have chosen not to use mineral UV filters as these often do not provide sufficient light protection and if they do, they still leave a noticeable white film on the skin. The well-tolerated, organic sun filters used by ANNEMARIE BÖRLIND protect the skin against the risk of sunburn and the well-known side and after effects.

To achieve this, the sun care products contain, for example, an extract from the cell wall of kombu seaweed. This includes a special lipid that protects the skin from damage caused by UV light. Kombu seaweed therefore incurs no damage when it is exposed to the sun at low tide. The seaweed is also rich in vitamins A and E, which provide the skin with a natural anti-aging complex and protect it against premature aging.

Other important ingredients for moisture and softness included are panthenol and sorbitol.

All of the ANNEMARIE BÖRLIND sun care products comply with the stringent requirements of the European Commission for protection against UVA and UVB rays. And all of the products are waterproof.

Sun protection filters suspected to be endocrine disruptors, such as ethylhexyl methoxycinnamate, are not contained in Börlind products.
